

What is Public Housing, Section 8, HUD, & More

What is Public Housing?

Public Housing (PH) consists of government owed rental properties (both apartment complexes and single family houses) that Albuquerque Housing Authority (AHA) owns and manages; AHA is the landlord. The rental assistance benefit is tied to the unit. Tenants pay 30% of their income as rent, up to market value rent for the unit. The rental assistance benefit ends once you move out of the Public Housing unit or once you graduate out of it by reaching an income level where your income based rent charge equals market value rent. While the subsidy ends at that point, you will not be required to move out of the Public Housing unit for being over the income limit for eligibility for admission to the program. Some of our properties are designated for senior and or disabled populations. Some sites offer on-site meal service for seniors, social services and community activities.

What is Section 8 Voucher Housing Choice Program?

The Section 8 Housing Choice Voucher Program (HCV) provides rental assistance to eligible individuals and families who find their own unit in the private rental housing market. The rented units are owned and maintained by a private landlord. Participants generally pay 30% of their total household income as rent to the private landlord. The difference in rent between the tenant's portion of the rent and the total month contract rent is the monthly Housing Assistance Payment (HAP) which is paid directly by AHA staff to the landlord. Eligible participants may freely choose to move out of Albuquerque to transfer their rental assistance voucher to rent the home of their choice in other communities in all 50 United States, plus U.S. Territories (District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, U.S. Virgin Islands, etc).
